

—ARTIST OF THE WEEK, LANAE WELTY—

The Artwork: "Books and Lantern" is an oil glaze piece featuring a vintage lantern in front of a stack of old books. Lanae started by sketching her layout on heavy watercolor paper using a grid and transfer. She was careful to get the correct perspective of the stacked books, as well as the cast shadows on all the items in the picture. With the layout complete, she began painting a resist layer using white tempera. The resist layer covers the entire paper except the pencil outlines and the areas to stay pure black. Once finished, she brushed on two wash layers of black India ink. Once dry, Lanae put the piece in the sink and turned on the faucet, softening the layer of ink and tempera while the heavy watercolor paper held its structure. She brushed off the tempera/ink layer, leaving behind a vintage, antiqued image left to be painted with the oil glaze. The oil glaze process begins by mixing the desired oil colors, followed by using Liquin to thin those colors down to a watercolor-like consistency. This allows colors to be layered on top of each other while the bottom most color still shows through. Lanae used multiple layers on every element of the picture. For the lantern, she used 4-5 layers of different turquoise/teal colors. On the books, she did the same, using multiple layers of thinned red and browns. The background consisted of layers of grays with hints of rust orange. The glazing method is a fast and smooth application of paint that allows for clean blending. The addition of the cast shadows gives the image an incredibly realistic depth, allowing the viewer to see the lantern sitting in front of the books and the staggered stacking of the books themselves.

The Artist: Lanae Welty is a senior at SHS where she is active in art, band, choir, Sterling Singers, jazz band, and FFA. She competes for the Black Bears in scholar's bowl, cross country, and softball. Outside school Lanae takes part in 4-H. After graduation Lanae plans to attend Hutchinson Community College for 1 year then finish at Kansas State University with a degree in Horticulture. Lanae is the daughter of David and Elizabeth Welty.
