Fall Gardening

It may be summer, but veteran gardeners know it's time to start planning the fall vegetable garden.

"Fall gardens may face additional pressures of pests and heat, but the flavor that comes from these late season crops are often better (than summer crops)," said Kansas State University horticulture expert Cynthia Domenghini.

She notes that gardeners should count the number of days to harvest, as well as the crops' tolerance to frost, before deciding when to plant fall crops. Crops may be seeded directly or transplanted into the garden.

"Growing transplants is a good choice when the temperature is too warm for starting seeds in the ground, assuming you have grow lights and space available for starting them indoors," Domenghini said.

She provides some tips for successful fall crops:

- When seeding crops directly into the garden, plant slightly deeper than recommended in the spring to take advantage of the cooler soil temperatures and moisture available.

- Water more frequently to prevent the seeds from drying out.
- Overhead watering often causes soil to crust, making it more difficult for young, tender plants to emerge. Prevent this by applying a light sprinkling of vermiculite or compost over the row after seeding, or use a soak hose or drip irrigation right next to the row to allow water to slowly seep into the ground.

Domenghini also suggests a timeline for planting fall crops:

Mid-July: Plant potatoes if you can find seed stock or have saved seed potatoes. Do not use freshly dug potatoes as they have built-in dormancy that will prevent growth. Also, grocery store potatoes are often treated, so they don't sprout.

Cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower can be started from seed at this time. Choose a protected place where the soil can be kept moist and rabbits will not bother them. This will not be where they will grow the entire season; these crops will be transplanted in August.

Late July: Seed beets, carrots and beans.

Early August: Seed spinach and long-season maturing lettuce. Leaf lettuce will be seeded later.

Mid-August: Transplant cabbage, broccoli and cauliflower to their final location. Seed radishes and leaf lettuce. There is no need to fertilize these crops before planting. Side-dress two weeks after transplanting, or four weeks after sowing seed, by applying two tablespoons of a 16-0-0 or one tablespoon of 27-3-3, 30-3-4 fertilizer (or something similar) per plant.

AND SKIN CANCER CENTER

SYDNEY CARNAHAN, P.A.-C

Sydney was born and raised in Falls City, NE. She attended the University of Nebraska Medical Center's Physician Assistant Program. Directly following her graduation in 2021, she started with Advanced Dermatology & Skin Cancer Center. Sydney is happy to be practicing near her hometown and surrounding rural communities, which allows for specialty care outside of the dreaded big city traffic for many patients. In the clinic, she can diagnose and treat a wide range of conditions, from common issues like eczema and acne to more serious concerns such as skin cancer. Sydney also provides guidance on skincare and preventative measures. Outside of work, Sydney enjoys spending time with her husband and son, swimming, chasing her dogs, working out or reading a book.
