can do to protect the foundation of democracy in action.

Brad Bryant has spent most of his career in elections. He worked in the Kansas Secretary of State's office as state election director and also in census and redistricting. After retiring from the state he worked for an election services company as its Kansas representative.

Bill Bryant is an attorney with experience as a prosecutor in Harvey County, Kansas. He more recently spent most of his career in banking, concentrating in resolving problem banks' issues, with substantial experience in federal and state regulatory matters. He maintains an active interest in law and government with specific interest in legal ethics.

Refreshments will be served. After a short presentation, the speakers will take questions from the audience.
